KNIGHT'S OATH ON INVESTITURE.

A.D. 506.

Sir, you that desire to receive the Order of Knighthood, swear, before God, and by this Holy Book, that you shall not fight against the King, who now bestoweth the Order of Knighthood upon you : you shall also swear with all your force and power to maintain and defend all ladies, gentlewomen, widows, orphans and distressed women, and you shall shun no adventure of your person in any way or war wherein you shall happen to be.

PREFACE.

THIS little work of reference has now reached the 16th edition: although it has been a work of considerable labour, it also gives me a great deal of pleasure to compile this Knightage. The information presented herein has been collected from Official Sources and from facts supplied by members themselves.

This year, in response to a widely expressed desire, the Council has endeavoured to add to the interest of the publication by including the armorial bearings of many of our members, and these can now be supplied in the form of book plates at one guinea for 250.

A circular letter was sent out informing members of our intention, and those who wished were asked to send particulars of their coats of arms to the Clerk.

This is the only publication to record the arms of Knights, as it is the only publication which gives the Christian name used with the Prefix, and from the numerous enquiries the Society receives from Public Officials on this particular point this feature alone justifies the addition of one more to the already long list of similar works of reference.

I hope the issue will be of use to the Public generally, and that in time to come the series will be of interest and value, not only to the Biographer but also to those concerned in genealogical research of all kinds.

Will members do all they can to get their friends who are not members to join our little Society? The more representative it is of our degree, the more useful the Society becomes.

In a work of this size, compiled by honorary labour, it is only natural that, in spite of all the care taken, mistakes will creep in. Some Knights ask that slips for correction should be circulated each year as is done with other publications of a similar kind, but owing to the expense involved this is impossible; so I hope if any reader discovers an error he will send me the enclosed post-card correcting it for the next edition. This book is widely circulated in Clubs and other places.

Miss Tyrwhitt, the Clerk, has greatly assisted me in seeing this book through the Press, and has also made the drawings of the coats of arms.

WILLIAM BULL,
Maltravers.

SOME INTERESTING NOTES CONCERNING KNIGHTHOOD

From Clark's "History of Knighthood," 1784.

THE English title Knight is derived from the Saxon Cnight, or Kneght Teutonic, a servant; and in all probability proceeded from their serving the King in his wars. Verstegan says, this title was given by our ancestors to such as were admitted for their merits to be Knights to the King, being his own servants, officers or retainers, to ride with him; it seems that some, if not all, were anciently called Knights-riders.

The most ancient manner of conferring Knighthood was by putting the military belt loose over the shoulder, or girding it close about the waist. The first Christian Kings, at giving their belt, kissed the new Knight on the left cheek, saying, In honour of the Father, and the Son, and the Holy Ghost, I make you a Knight.

The first account (according to Sir William Segar) that we have of Ceremonies in making a Knight in England, was in the year 506, in the following manner, viz.: A stage was erected in some cathedral, or spacious place near it, to which the gentleman was conducted to receive the honour of Knighthood. Being seated on a chair decorated with green silk, it was demanded of him if he were of a good constitution, and able to undergo the fatigue required of a soldier; also whether he were a man of good morals, and what credible witness he could produce to affirm the same.

Then the Bishop, or chief Prelate of the Church, administered the following oath: Sir, you that desire to receive the order of Knighthood, swear before God, and this holy book, that you will not fight against his Majesty, that now bestoweth the order of Knighthood upon you. You shall also swear to maintain and defend all Ladies, Gentlewomen, Widows and Orphans; and you shall shun no adventure of your person in any war wherein you shall happen to be.

The oath being taken, two Lords led him to the King, who drew his sword, and laid it upon his head, saying, Gods and St. George (or whatever other Saint the King pleased to name) make thee a good Knight; after which seven Ladies dressed in white came and girt a sword to his side, and four Knights put on his spurs.

These ceremonies being over, the Queen took him by the right hand, and a Duchess by the left, and led him to a rich seat, placed on an ascent, where they seated him, and the King sitting on his right hand, and the Queen on his left.

Then the Lords and Ladies also sat down upon other seats, three descents under the King; and being all thus seated, they were entertained with a delicate collation; and so the ceremony ended.

If any Knight absented himself dishonourably from his King's service, leaving his colours, going over to the enemy, betraying of castles, forts, etc., for such crimes he was apprehended, and caused to be armed cap-à-pie, and the seated on a scaffold erected in the church, where, after the priest having sung some funeral Psalms, as though he had been dead, they first took off his helmet, to show his face, then his military girdle, broke his sword, cut off his spurs from his heels with a hatchet, pulled off his gauntlets, and after his whole armour, and then reversed his coat of arms; after which the Herald crying out, "This is a disloyal miscreant," with many other ignominious he was thrown down the stage with a rope; but now the martial law is usually put in execution, by dispatching such traitorous persons by a file of musqueteers.

In the time of the Saxons here in England, Knights received their institutions at the hands of great Prelates, with many religious ceremonies but after the Conquest this custom was restrained by a Synod at Westminster A.D. 1102, 3 Henry I.

Knighthood anciently depended upon tenure; so that he who held a Knight's fee might be compelled to take the same, or undergo a fine, which quite debased the title. Camden says, Knights were made upon account of their estates; for they who had a great Knight's fee (that is, if we may credit old records, 680 acres of land) claimed the honour of Knighthood, as thereby entitled to it.

In Henry the Third's reign whoever had the yearly revenue of fifteen pounds in land, was compelled to receive this dignity so that the title was become rather a burden than an honour. In the year 1256 the King issued a proclamation, whereby it was ordered and declared throughout the realm, that whoever had fifteen librates of land or above, should be knighted, for increase of the military strength of England, as it was in Italy, and that they who would not, or could not, support the honour of Knighthood, should compound for a dispensation.

And in those days, when the King made a Knight, he sat in state upon his throne, in robes of gold, with a small gold crown upon his head, and to every Knight he allowed one hundred shillings for equipage.

And not only the King, but the Earls also, conferred Knighthood, in that age. The Earl of Gloucester having proclaimed a tournament, knighted his brother William, and Simon de Montfort, Earl of Leicester, conferred the same honour upon Gilbert de Clare.

NOTE—A Knight's service was a tenure, by which several lands in this nation were held of the King. But it is abolished by statute of 12 Car II, chap. 24. The qualifications for Knighthood now are Merit, Birth, and Estate, they are to be Gentlemen of three paternal descents, bearing coat armour.

The different Orders of Knighthood are divided into two classes, the first consists of the Religious, which not only includes the defence of the Princes, the State and of Christianity, but also by particular vows, and other Rules, renders them entirely under subjection to their chief. The second class comprehends the military, which Sovereigns have established to encourage the nobility, and keep emulation among their subjects in the wars, and the management of state affairs.

- [Mr Clark proceeds to discourse further on the position of the Knights Bachelor in his day]

This degree of honour is the most ancient, though the lowest Order of Knights in England. It was accounted the first of all military dignity, and the foundation of all honours. The word Bachelor was added by King Henry the Third, and so styled, because this title of honour dies with the person to whom it is given, and descends not to his posterity.

This title, which was anciently in high esteem, is now conferred indiscriminately upon Gownsmen, Physicians, Burghers, and Artists, whereby the original institution is perverted, and is of less reputation than it hath been; it still is accounted a respectable degree of honour both in England and foreign countries.

A Knight may be made as soon as a child is baptised; the ceremony now in use being no other than kneeling down before the King, who with a drawn sword lightly touches him on the right shoulder, with these words, Sous chevalier au nom de Dieu; and then, Avancez, chevalier.

A Knight must be named by both his Christian and surname (with Sir preceding) as Sir T—— L——, Knight. If a Knight be made a Nobleman, he still retains the name of Knight, and is to be so styled in all writs.

THE KNIGHTS-BACHELOR INSIGNIA.

An account of how the Society obtained the Badge has been fully set out in the 13th, 14th and 15th editions of this book, but it is perhaps useful to record here that the Royal Warrant granting the Insignia appeared in the "Gazette" on the 23rd April, 1926, and was as follows:—

Whitehall, April 23, 1926.

The KING has been pleased to issue a Warrant under his Majesty's Royal Sign Manual to the following effect:—

GEORGE R I.

GEORGE THE FIFTH, by the Grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British Dominions beyond the Seas, King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India

To Our Right Trusty and Well-beloved Cousin and Counsellor Edmund Bernard Viscount FitzAlan of Derwent, Knight of Our Most Noble Order of the Garter, Knight Grand Cross of the Royal Victorian Order, Companion of the Distinguished Service Order, Deputy to Our Right Trusty and Right Entirely-beloved Cousin Bernard Marquess, Duke of Norfolk, Earl Marshal and Our Hereditary Marshal of England, Greeting!

Whereas We having taken into Our Royal Consideration certain circumstances humbly represented unto Us and being desirous of enhancing the state and dignity of the ancient and honourable degree of knight bachelor, have thought fit to grant and prescribe a Badge which may be worn by those of Our loving subjects who have from time to time been advanced to the separate and singular degree of knight bachelor or may hereafter be so advanced:

Now Know Ye that We of Our Princely Grace, Special Favour and Mere Motion have for Ourselves, Our Heirs and Successors given and granted and do by these Presents give and grant unto all such persons as aforesaid Our Royal Licence and Authority that they may henceforth upon all appropriate occasions wear upon the left side of the coat or outer garment a Badge measuring approximately three inches in length and two inches in width, as hereinafter described, and as shown in the painting hereunto annexed, that is to say "Upon an oval medallion of vermillion, enclosed by a scroll, a cross-hilted sword belted and sheathed, pommel upwards, between two spurs, rowels upwards, the whole set about with the swordbelt, all gilt."

Our Will and Pleasure therefore is that you, Edmund Bernard Viscount FitzAlan of Derwent, Deputy to Our said Earl Marshal, to whom the cognizance of matters of this nature doth properly belong, do require and command that this Our grant and prescription be recorded in Our College of Arms to the end that Our Officers of Arms and all others upon occasion may take full notice and have knowledge thereof:

And for so doing this shall be your Warrant.

Given at Our Court at Windsor, the twenty-first day of April, 1926, in the sixteenth year of Our Reign.

By His Majesty's Command.

W Joynson-Hicks.

THE SOCIETY TO-DAY.

The Society was formed for the maintenance and consolidation of the Dignity of the Knights Bachelor, and one of the original aims was to obtain permission from His Majesty for the Knights Bachelor to wear again an Insignia of the Degree. This the Society achieved in 1926.

The Council hope that they may see a further number of the Knights who are not yet members of the Society entered upon the books in the near future, as it is only by receiving the support of an even larger majority of those upon whom the honour of Knighthood has been conferred that the work of the Society can be carried forward.

At the present time the principal work of the Society is :—To register every duly authenticated Knighthood (the Warrant instituted by King James the First having lapsed in 1902); to uphold the Dignity and protect the Rights of the Degree at all times, to advise Knights Bachelor on any matters relating to the Degree (Heraldry, Etiquette, etc.); and to publish annually this Knightage containing a complete list of the existing recipients of the Dignity of Knight Bachelor, together with the biographical details of all members of the Society and the Armorial Bearings of such as wish this.

At the Registry accommodation has been provided so that members visiting London may transact temporary business, dictate their correspondence, and arrange for interviews, etc. Letters addressed to members at The Imperial Society of Knights Bachelor, 21, Old Buildings, Lincoln's Inn, London, W.C.2, England, will be retained at the Registry or re-directed in accordance with instructions given.

A number of works of reference are available in the Library for the use of members, and information will be gladly given on questions of heraldry, grants of arms, and genealogy. All Knights are invited to contribute, by loan or donation, copies of their published works, memorials, pictures or other objects of general interest to their Degree, and the nucleus of a valuable collection has already been formed, thanks to the generosity of certain members.

The subscription to the Society was fixed at £1 is a year. A payment of £10 10s. in one amount confers life membership, after which there is no further liability. On the admission of a member to the Society an authentic record of his name and description is entered in the Roll, and the honour conferred upon him in due course is registered on Garter's Roll of Knights Bachelor. Each member is entitled to a free copy of the annual "Knightage," giving dates of precedence, new creations, etc., and, on payment of a fee of 10s 6d., the Society's Certificate containing a record of his creation, etc. His Armorial Bearings will also be inserted in the "Knightage" on the payment of 10s towards the cost of making the line engraving. After use in "Knightage" these are available for the printing of book plates, if desired.

THE SOCIETY'S MOTTO.

From time to time the Council considered a Motto for the Society. After much thought and investigation one was considered from the following article by the Rev. C. A. Alington, D.D., the Headmaster of Eton :—

- "The knight claims a more honourable derivation inasmuch as to be
- a true servant or knecht is a real title to nobility. The idea survives in the Prince of Wales's motto (I serve) and finds glorious expression in the Prayer Book. Its great phrase, 'whose service is perfect freedom,' is a free translation from the Latin, which literally means to serve whom is to be a King (cui servire est regnare); But the genius of the translator told him that the true-born Englishman thought it a higher honour to be perfectly free than to be a King by an accident of descent "

"Whose Service" has some of the attributes of a perfect Motto—it is English, crisp, intriguing and elusive—but after consideration the Council decided to adopt the motto in an extended form that would be more explanatory, namely:—

"Whose Service is Perfect Freedom " and this is now the motto of the Society.

CRESTS AND COATS OF ARMS.

By The Right Hon Sir William Bull, Knight and Baronet, Maltravers Herald Extraordinary, Principal of the Society.

I find the average man is very shy about discussing his coat of arms or family crest. This is due partly to uncertainty and partly to an ignorance that is not only excusable but natural, because men as a rule have been all their lives engrossed in affairs more important, and have put aside such questions until they should have more leisure. After a man has received the honour of Knighthood, however, his thoughts turn to this subject and he begins to examine old spoons and book-plates.

To anticipate some of the many questions that are put to me every year on this matter, let me explain in the first instance that comparatively few people can really be described as "Armigerous" in the strict sense of the word; that is to say, that the coat of arms they use has been properly recognised, registered and brought up to date at the College of Arms. Some men use a coat which has descended to them from their fathers or grandfathers on either side, but which they have no possible right to use. Generally, they honestly believe and stoutly maintain that they have a right to it because it was employed by their forbears, but in Heraldry there is no such thing as a prescriptive right to arms. Other men have, in many cases quite wrongly, taken the arms of families of the same name, perhaps on the advice of some "Heraldic Stationer."

The origins of the science and art of Heraldry are obscure and the subject is controversial, but we do know that arms were undoubtedly in general use throughout Europe by the twelfth century.

This is my own personal view of the course of events, but it is only fair to say that it is hotly contested by others.

When Knights first took to armour, it was found that they were indistinguishable in battle, their faces were hidden under a helmet or behind a visor, they became mixed in a fray, and if they were unhorsed or fell, their followers did not know whom to follow or which way to go.

Now the Knight used to wear over his armour a white linen surtout for the purpose of protecting it from rust, of preventing its "blinding the eyes of his men" in strong sunshine, and of shielding himself from the heat; it occurred to some unknown genius at some stage that, if a plain sign were painted on the back and front of this surtout, there could be no mistake as to the identity of the wearer. This practice became general and each Knight in the early days chose a different distinguishing sign—a red or blue cross, a black lion or a green dragon. Thus the surtout became literally what it was, a Coat of Arms.

What could be more natural than that, when a Knight fell dead on a stricken field, his son and heir should treasure the coat his father had worn, have it repaired and wear it himself, or have a copy of it made?

Rather later someone advised the Sovereign that this was a feeling that should be encouraged for more reasons than one; the Sovereign became the Fount of Chivalry, and Kings of Arms and Heralds were appointed to record and regulate the designs and to see that they were not used by people who had no right to them. Incidentally it would never do to have two Knights with red dragons on their surtouts in the field, as their men would be unable to know which to follow.

The Crest, cut out in boiled leather, was another distinguishing mark, and this was placed upon the helmet on top of the mantling, a head-covering, serving the same purpose as the surtout, for the protection of the helmet. In the mêlée this covering would frequently get hacked to pieces, and the Heralds, when depicting coats of arms pictorially, seized upon this opportunity to surround the helmet and crest with the familiar floresque effect called a "lambrequin."

To carry the story one step further, tournaments greatly increased the lustre and popularity of Heraldry. Great shields emblazoned with the arms of the combatants would be carried into the arena so that all spectators could see clearly who were going to battle. These shields were carried or held up by the serving-men or retainers of the respective Knights, and, to add to the general festivity of the scene, it became the fashion to dress up these men as beasts—lions, bears, etc. Hence they originated the "supporters" that Peers are entitled to bear on either side of their coats of arms.

Arms were from early days hereditary, descending, like freehold estates, in the male line, and, when that gave out, daughters became heiresses in Heraldry, and their arms were added to those of their husbands by what is known as "quartering" them. Some people boast of sixty-four and more quarterings, but I prefer for ordinary use the plainest and simplest of coats.

It must be remembered that a coat of arms is applicable to only one man at one time, and, strictly speaking, each member of the same family living at the same time should have some slight alteration in his coat, which is technically called a "difference."

I suppose it is only natural, but people are very chary of saying at what date their coats were registered. My old friend, the late A. C. Fox Davies, used to say that the grant of a petition for a coat of arms was a distinction on the same footing as a Knighthood. Why boggle at the date of one when you do not at the date of the other? After all, every family has to have a beginning somewhere.

"Who are these upstart Cecils?" is the alleged cry of the angry and haughty Henry de Vere, Earl of Oxford, in the days of Queen Elizabeth, and yet this family, springing from an official of the Court of King Henry VIII., by devotion to the State and loyal service to successive Sovereigns, has become deservedly one of the leading families in England.

After all, heredity is only a question of record. We have all the same number of generations of ancestors, and the fact that records of some have been kept longer than others marks the difference. Therefore, if anyone who reads this article cares to apply for a grant of arms, let him do so without beating about the bush. Do not let him waste his time trying to join his pedigree on to an old coat. If there is any likely connection between the two the Heralds at the College of Arms can tell him at a glance what chances there are of his establishing it.

I recollect an unusually wealthy colleague of mine in the House of Commons taking quite a different line. He said: "I want a coat of arms, but I want a new one. My name is the same as that of a highly distinguished family, but I have no cause to believe that I am related in any way. I come from a different county, far distant from theirs, and my father and mother were in the humblest of positions." In effect, he said: "I don't want people to think of me as related to others. I want to be my own ancestor and found a family for myself. I want an original coat of arms in the name I have built up on my carriages and on my notepaper." (It was the custom to do both in those days.)

Then came the question of what he should have on his coat. He was for incorporating part of the arms of the borough which he represented in Parliament. I said: "No, you will never forgive yourself if you are turned out," and I then designed a very simple, but I have since been told an effective coat, with which he was extremely pleased, and which his grandchildren continue to use with pride and satisfaction.

I have reiterated the idea of a simple coat of arms. Many men come to me overflowing with designs and ideas, but I have to point out to them that an escutcheon is of little use if it cannot be easily depicted on a seal or a ring, where a crowded design becomes so small as to be indistinguishable.

A question I am often asked is why most animals are so fantastically drawn in Heraldry. Why are lions grotesquely tufted on their elbows, knees and ankles? I think the reason is this: a simply drawn horse or lion on a banner flapping in the breeze would scarcely be distinguishable, but the heraldic beasts are far more readily differentiated and recognised by reason of these quaint additions and distortions.

The study of Heraldry is a most fascinating one, and the fever once caught is almost impossible to assuage. You will also find, as I have attempted to show you, endless short and accurate reasons for everything.

The final test of a good coat of arms is that it should be easily reproduced in facsimile from a written description by an artist who has never seen the original picture of the coat. There is not the slightest ambiguity about any fact; there are only seven colours in Heraldry, no semi-tones or mixed colours and no shading—each animal has some clearly defined position (regardant, couchant, rampant, etc.)—, and all lines are defined and the position of each object on the shield exactly described.

ONE HUNDRED KNIGHTS.

At a meeting of the Council held in 1924 it was decided to compile a list of 100 of the most distinguished Members of our Degree. I here report the result of their deliberations.

The Council will be glad to receive any alterations and suggestions, as they wish the list to be as perfect as possible.

OBITUARY.

July 31st, 1929, to July 31st, 1930.

Many distinguished Knights have passed away since the last issue of our year-book.

It is with deep regret that we record the deaths of Sir ASTON WEBB, whose splendid architecture will cause his name to be revered and admired by many future generations, and Sir VINCENT CAILLARD, who rendered such distinguished service to the State. Both these Knights had been for many years Members of our Council and their loss deeply affects the Society.

We also deplore the gallant death of Sir HENRY SEGRAVE which, after great achievements, cut short a career of even more brilliant promise.

The recent loss of Sir FARNHAM BURKE, Garter King of Arms, must distress all those imbued with a love of the past—all those who delight in recreating living active forms from the dry bones of musty records.

The Empire is poorer for the death of many notable legal authorities including several of our most eminent Judges.

South Africa in particular has suffered this year the loss of a number of her more prominent citizens, and the names of The Hon. Sir WILLIAM BEAUMONT, Sir WILLIAM HOY, Sir JULIUS JEPPE and The Hon. Sir HENRY JUTA will not soon be forgotten.

The world of letters mourns Sir ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE, scholarship Sir THOMAS ARNOLD, architecture Sir ROBERT LORIMER in addition to Sir ASTON WEBB, and the stage Sir JOHN FAGAN.

Famous physicians, prominent business men and public benefactors of far and wide have paid the toll, and the Empire reveres their memory.

THE ARMORIAL BEARINGS OF A FEW KNIGHTS BACHELOR.

FOREWORD.

For the sake of artistic unity it was decided to simplify the coats of arms as far as possible, and to depict only the essential parts of the achievement. Therefore no circles of the various Orders of Knighthood are included, nor are the Knight's arms impaled with those of his Dame, as these are both entirely voluntary elaborations of his original coat.

In this edition I have been able only to place the Coats of Arms in a supplement at the end of the book owing to various unexpected delays for which I am not to blame. Next year, however, I hope and believe that there will be a great many additions, in which case we shall be able to improve on this arrangement.
